PARC

The map contains a dense network of text labels for various locations. Major towns and cities are labeled in large, bold letters, including Paris, Mantes-la-Jolie, Evry-Courcouronnes, St. Germain-en-Laye, and Fontenay-le-François. Smaller villages and hamlets are labeled in smaller fonts. The Seine river is prominently featured, winding through the center of the map. Major roads are shown with their respective numbers and symbols. Green areas represent parks and forests, while blue areas represent water bodies. A blue line traces a path through the region, starting from the north and moving southwards. Various symbols, including squares and circles, indicate points of interest such as museums, parks, and historical sites. The map also shows the Bois de Vincennes area in the northeast and the Bois de Boulogne area in the northwest.
